Former Orland Park Resident to Appear In Joliet Concert

Mrs. Prudence Neff Thomas well known former Orland Park resident, will be the assisting artist with the Joliet Symphony orchestra at its next concert, December 3rd.

Rubenstein's fine concert in D minor, for piano and orchestra, has been chosen for the thrilling medium of introduction to this well known pianist.

Prudence Neff has enjoyed a musical career such as is the good fortune of few native artists in America. Not only has she had the honor of appearing as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra as well as the Minneapolis and the Russian Symphony orchestras, but her concert engagements have caused her to be heard in every important city in the country and her art has won praise from critics of national importance.

Miss Neff has toured America as a soloist in her own concerts, with such illustrious artists as Hugo Heerman and Kocian, as well as with the charming Maggie Teyte and the great Florence Hinkle.

In a recent contest of the National Federation of Music Clubs Miss Neff won over representative pianists from 15 states, a great honor.

Besides all this, Miss Neff has proved her talents when serving on the faculty of the Chicago Musical college and was for three years director of the piano department of the Southern School of Musical Art at Birmingham, Ala., and on returning to Chicago has opened the Prudence Neff piano studios in the Kimball building.

The critical comments from Chicago newspapers have been universally favorable. The Chicago Herald and Examiner said: "Virtuosity is the salient feature of her style, and her art shone resplendent. We have rarely heard a more refined and finished performance of the Chopin B Minor Sonata which Miss Neff gave to it."

Other Chicago newspapers were even more enthusiastic.

Ralph Cissne, director of the orchestra is offering a delightful program for the coming concert. Its numbers are cheerful and gay. It opens with the lovely Ruy Blas overture by Mendelssohn, followed by the Andante Cantabile from Symphony No. 5 by Tchaikowsky. Then follows the Rubenstein concerto with Miss Neff, one of the most thrilling compositions. The happiest of waltzes by Strauss, "Roses of the South," is to follow the concerto.

The Peer Gynt Suite by Grieg, a favorite, will follow the Mendelssohn waltz. Excerpts from the "Caucasian Sketches" by Ippolitow Ivanow will follow the Grieg suite.

Miss Neff was in Joliet to rehearse the concerto with the orchestra on Monday night.

Attorn. George Blatt To Address Mokena Sunday Evening Club

The speaker for next Sunday evening to address the Mokena M. E. Sunday Evening Club, will be attorney George Blatt, of Joliet well known Will County lawyer.

Rev. Welburn E. Bradburn, pastor of the Ottawa Street M. E. church of Joliet was to have been the speaker, but owing to his inability to come, attorney Blatt will speak in his stead.

The service begins 7:30 p. m. Be sure to attend all these meetings.

These meetings are to continue in the form of a forum. Bring your questions and ask them. It is your opportunity to clear whatever doubtful questions you have concerning the questions which will be discussed at these meetings.

Mokena's Gold Gulch Mayor Back in Office

Don C. Hall who has had a short rest from his duties as mayor of "Gold Gulch" of the days of '49 famous exhibit which showed all thru the World's Fair, is back on the job again, this time at Joliet where the exhibit is being sponsored by the St. Mary Catholic church for a week and Mrs. Hall is playing her part the same as she did in the World's Fair. The attraction is creating much attention and interest.

Mokena School Board Hires New Teacher

The Mokena board of school directors have engaged Miss Mildred Vail of Benton, Wisconsin to succeed Mrs. Mae Houston, who recently resigned. Miss Vail is a graduate of the Cedar Falls, Iowa Teachers College.

She will teach English and general science in the local school. There were fifteen applicants for this position.

WOLF ROAD CASE SET FOR DECEMBER 5TH

The date for the hearing of the condemnation suit of Will County against C. M. Cleveland for a right of way thru his farm for the continuation of the Wolf road paving from Hickory Creek bridge south to the Lincoln highway, has been set for next Tuesday, December 5th in the county court before Judge Knough of Dupage County.

Attorney A. H. Krusemark will assist states attorney Wm. R. McCabe in prosecuting the case. Attorney William Heise, former states attorney of Will county will represent Mr. Cleveland.

Soon as the right of way question is settled bids will be asked for the construction of the mile gap which would afford employment for many unemployed men this winter as much of the grading and fill work could be done.

As soon as the connection with the Lincoln highway is assured an immediate effort should be put forth to secure aid from the federal road construction fund so the paving of Wolf road could be carried on from the Lincoln highway south to route 51. This would complete Wolf road in Will County and would afford much employment which is so greatly needed at this time. Now is the time to get busy and to act.

Wolf road is the last highway on the Will County bond issue which has not been finished. The people of Frankfort township hope that the condemnation suit in question will be carried thru without further delay so that the long drawn out right of way question can be settled once and for all.

Wolf road is one of the most important highways in Will and Cook counties and must be completed regardless of all opposition.

Illustrated Lecture Coming to Frankfort

An illustrated lecture on "Popular Astronomy" by Almond Fairfield will be given in the Frankfort School auditorium on Wednesday evening, December 6th at 7:30 p. m.

The wonders of the universe will be clearly and fascinatingly explained with beautifully colored pictures from the world's greatest observatories.

Explore the vast expanses of space in the tremendous tour of the universe. Go to the sun, to the moon, to the uttermost depths of space beyond the Milky Way, a journey of marvels and amazements. Visit the waterless surface of the moon.

See the ranges of extinct volcanoes and hear explanations of peculiar lunar conditions.

Learn of the climates of Venus and Mercury, of life on Mars, of Saturn with its nine moons and three rings, the most sensational of the planets, of Pluto, the new planet, also of Asteroids, Comets and Shooting Stars.

Know how the stars are weighed and measured. See the Red Giants and the White Dwarfs.

Investigate the Milky Way, Star Clouds, and Star Clusters, the entire Galactic System.

Then peer out into the depths of space thru powerful telescopes that have revealed incomprehensibly distant star cities and an amazing number of nebulae.

An unforgettable experience, stimulating and stupendous, which gives an outlook on the universe as a whole, an insight into the meaning of our world in its relationship to space and time and an appreciation of the significance of life and the destiny of man.

Be sure and see these wonders at the Frankfort school auditorium on Wednesday, December 6th. Proceeds are to go for the benefit of the school band.

Breidert-Walsh Nuptials

Miss Lillian Breidert, daughter of Jacob Breidert of Frankfort and Wilbur Walsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Walsh of New Lenox were married Wednesday in the M. E. parsonage at New Lenox by the Rev. Paul Dibble. Miss Lois Walsh, sister of the groom and Vernon Alexander attended the couple.

The bride wore a gown of blue crepe with matching accessories and a corsage of pink sweet peas. Miss Walsh wore a brown crepe outfit.

Mr. Walsh manages a service station on Cedar street in New Lenox. The couple will live with his parents temporarily.

Mail Bag Ground Up

Mokena subscriber of Chicago papers which are delivered by mail were without their papers Wednesday morning when the bag containing the papers rolled underneath the wheels of a fast train and were cut to bits.

"Fan Dancer" Adds Pep to Orland Fire Depart., Initiation

The Orland Park Volunteer Fire Department initiated four new members at a very jovial meeting at the American Legion Hall Monday night.

The initiation rites are said to have been a wow. One feature of the ceremony which kept the guests in an uproar of laughter was a "fan dance" put on by a dancer from Lemont, who used pieces of cardboard in place of the customary fans. This understudy of Sally Rand however happened to be a male fan dancer.

State Fire Marshall Hoffman, Mr. O'Reilly of the Darling Company of Chicago, dealers in fire fighting equipment, addressed the firemen.

Fire Chief Nield of Hammond, Indiana, the Fire Chief of Lemont and ten members of his fire department also were present. At the close of the initiation eats and refreshments were served.

The four Orland Park firemen who were initiated were: Orville Schmaedeke, Lawrence Burkhardt, Joe Rust and Howard Beagle.

It is said this blowout was the best ever enjoyed by the Orland fire men since their fire department has been organized.

Tinley Park Legion Aux. Unit

Mrs. Lester N. Stoltenberg, Publicity Chairman

On Monday, November 20, 1933 the Tinley Park Legion Auxiliary held their regular meeting, with Mrs. Margaret West our president, officiating. There was a large attendance, twenty-two members being present.

The meeting was called to order and proceeded with the business to come before the unit.

Our President first welcomed two new members into the unit. Mrs. Claire Gardner and Mrs. Elmer Schoeneck. We are happy to have them with us and hope we will see them at all future meetings.

As this is the Thanksgiving season our family relief chairman, Mrs. George Rowden, and committee have arranged baskets for the needy veterans families of Tinley Park. The unit is actively engaged at this time in preparing their program for the Christmas Holidays. They will entertain and give a supper on Christmas Eve to the boys at the Forty and Eight convalescent camp at Orland Park. We have also contributed toward the slipper fund at Ed. Hines Jr. Hospital. Slippers to be given to each patient for Christmas.

Our membership chairman, Mrs. Henry Strassenburg made a report on a membership drive which is now in progress and in which all active members are participating. She hopes the unit will reach their quota by December 6, 1933. Here's wishing her luck.

Mrs. Trudie Swisher our Americanism chairman read a poem which she wrote in commemorating the Pilgrims. The poem follows:

BE THANKFUL
By Trudie Noehring Swisher.

We know the Pilgrims landed, in the days of long ago,
And fought their way to freedom,
That's why we love them so.
We know of all the hardships, they patiently endured,
And how they fought the redman,
To keep their homes secure.

And yet, through all these trials,
They ne'er forgot to pray
And ask their heavenly Father, to guide them day by day.
They taught their little children
That holiness was right
And for religious freedom was what had made them fight.

They worked with faith undying
Because their cause was just,
I wonder if we, of today, are thankful half enough?

I wonder how we dare to pray,
The kind of prayers we do,
I wonder if we are sincere, in all the things we do.

I wonder do we thank our God,
For blessing great or small,
I wonder are there some of us,
who never thank at all?

Time changes things the whole world o'er,
Yet deep within each heart
There is a flame of hope, from which

Not one of us should part.
Tis just a little light of love,
Pray keep it burning bright,
And ask the blessing of your God,
To rest on you tonight.

Be thankful for that which you have,
Be glad for skies above,
There's heaven after death you know,
And God is always love.

Mrs. Swisher also had questions arranged about Thanksgiving Day, which the members answered.

Our Fidac chairman, Mrs. Herman Frietag had a contest in which the members were asked to name the Fidac flags. The member naming the flags correctly received a prize. Mrs. Carl Winsor was the lucky winner.

Miss Ruth Frietag, and Master Wyant Winsor sang two vocal duets

E. R. HATCH, FORMER MOKENA MAN DIES IN IOWA

E. R. Hatch, well known former Mokena boy, who has been in the employ of The Hubinger Co., at Keokuk, Iowa as vice-president, secretary and general manager, died Sunday morning in the St. Joseph hospital in that city after a serious illness of a month. Death came at 10 a. m. Although his friends were aware of his illness, his death was unexpected and came as a severe shock to the entire community.

Mr. Hatch came to Keokuk eleven years ago, from Chicago where he had served as manager of the Pope Beet Sugar Company. At the time of his death he was general manager and also secretary of the Hubinger Company.

Golf was his chief pastime, and he treasured the many associations which came to him as a result of his participation in this sport.

Elbert Ray Hatch was born in Mokena, Illinois, on September 11, 1884 the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hatch.

He was a member of the Keokuk Country Club, the Fairview Club and the Keokuk Club.

Surviving him besides his wife, Mrs. Edyth Hanford Hatch, is a son, Elbert Dale Hatch. One son died in infancy. Surviving also are five sisters, Mrs. Henry Stellwagen, Mokena; Mrs. George Pittaway, Chicago; Mrs. Herman Grassle, Mrs. Tom Harvey, Mrs. Sam Fulton, all of Joliet and one brother, Alfred Hatch of Mokena. One brother, John O., died three years ago in Altadena, Calif.

The funeral services were held from St. John's Episcopal church at 4 p. m. Tuesday, with burial in the Mount Hope Cemetery, in Chicago Wednesday afternoon.

Aged Man Throws Self Under Train

A man about 70 years, an inmate of the Infirmary at Oak Forest committed suicide Monday morning by throwing himself in front of the local Rock Island freight train which was switching cars. Conductor Johnson was riding the car in front of which the aged man threw himself. His body was cut in two and death was instant. Dependancy is supposed to have been the cause for the rash act.

Child Welfare Clinic Meets at Orland Park, December 13

The regular monthly Child Welfare Conference will be held at Orland Park public school on Wednesday, December 13th from 10 a. m. to 12 o'clock noon.

These conferences are under the auspices of the Rural Public Health Nursing Service of Cook County. A clinician and a nurse are in attendance to give advice. A minimum attendance of 20 mothers warrants the holding of these conferences. May we have the interest of your community in promoting this work.

HARRIET FULMER, Supervisor.

Tinley Unemployed Register at B. I.

Mayor Charles F. Nielsen of Tinley Park has posted a notice that all unemployed men and women that are not on the relief roll may register for employment at the Blue Island Field House at York and Gregory Streets.

HOME FOR THANKSGIVING

Miss Lois Baumgartner, daughter of Mr. John Baumgartner of Frankfort, a senior at National College of Education, is spending the Thanksgiving vacation at home with her father.

National College of Education is located in Evanston, Illinois, on Lake Michigan near Northwestern University and is outstanding in the field of teacher training.

which were arranged and accompanied by our music chairman, Mrs. Carl Winsor. The songs were, "Thanksgiving Day" and "Thanksgiving Song," and were sung very ably and received much applause.

Mrs. Whitfield gave a very interesting report on the first, 4th District meeting at which there were thirteen members of the Tinley Park Unit present. Mrs. Margaret West is 4th District Chaplain and Mrs. Geo. Rowden, 4th District Americanism chairman. The Unit were also co-hostesses in entertaining the Units of the 4th District. All spent a very enjoyable evening.

The Unit is planning to give a play, proceeds of same to go for service. But more news about that later.

The meeting was adjourned about 10:30 p. m. The next regular meeting will be December 8, 1933. All members are urged to attend.

The White Store, the Store Friends Built, Sponsors Exhibit

The White Store, Joliet, Will County's best known department store, has at tremendous expense to the store, brought one of the most unique exhibits ever seen in Joliet.

Mr. J. J. Cohen, owner and manager of this popular store, has put on an unique exhibit at 310 North Chicago Street in Joliet by way of "Buck" Baker and his troupe of 16 direct from Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey Circus the World's most imitated and internationally known clown who presents "Lone Star" the world's largest living cow direct from A Century of Progress (The World's Fair) where this animal has been on exhibit during the duration of the Fair at the 37th street entrance.

The cow was raised on the J-J Ranch of South Texas. Its mother was a little Jersey cow that weighed only 530 lbs. Her father was of the Brahma breed of cattle also known as the sacred cow of India (a medium weight cattle).

The cow on exhibition is 8 years old and still growing, weighs over 2800 lbs., stands 6 ft. 1 inch tall, a freak for size but normal in every other way.

This cow was on exhibition the entire time at the World's Fair and its photos are scattered all over the world.

$500 reward is offered for proof of a living cow as large in every way as this Texas cow is.

Miss Jeanne Maulsby of San Antonio, Texas is the owner of this famous bovine.

Free tickets will be given to all children to the age of 12 years who come to The White Store with their parents. They will receive Free of Charge a ticket of admission to see and hear Buck Baker the famous clown and the world's largest living cow. Just come to The White Store and you will receive your ticket to the exhibition at 310 North Chicago Street. No purchases necessary. Everyone in this section is urged to see this unique exhibit.

Verdict Returned in Favor of Farm Owner

The case of Mrs. Minnie Wischover, Frankfort against her farm tenant Charles Bohnsack regarding a rent dispute was heard in the court of Justice John Clark in Frankfort Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Bohnsack contended he had rented the farm on shares while Mrs. Wischover declared the farm was rented on a cash rental basis. A jury returned a verdict in favor of Mrs. Wischover.

Attorney A. H. Krusemark represented Mrs. Wischover and attorney Elmer Biefeldt was the counsel for Mr. Bohnsack.

State Police Find Stolen Automobile

An abandoned Chrysler Sedan stolen from Walkerton, Indiana was found along the Lincoln highway near the Mokena road by state police Tuesday evening.

News Nuggets From Illinois

A Circuit court jury in Edwardsville found Stella Christoff, seventeen-year-old farm girl, guilty of manslaughter in her trial for the murder of Nelson H. Voss, young rural mail carrier. The defendant testified that she shot and killed the mail carrier July 13 because she feared he was going to attack her.

Machinery for the distribution of Illinois' 1934 automobile license plates "in the smoothest and most efficient manner ever attained" was set into motion by Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes upon delivery of the first shipment of the new plates. Under terms of the law in effect January 1, he explained, automobile owners must accompany their application for 1934 licenses with bills of sale or other satisfactory proof of ownership, in exchange for which they will receive a certificate of title bearing the signature of the secretary of state. Under the new law a charge of 50 cents, in addition to the license fee, is required to bear the expense of this added service.

The regional committee of bankers and business men for Illinois to speed the work of liquidating more than $3,000,000,000 of assets of closed national and state banks, is: Monroe F. Cockrell, vice president, Continental Illinois National bank; F. B. Gallagher, manager, Reconstruction Finance corporation at Chicago; William L. O'Connell, general receiver, state of Illinois, Chicago; Charles Albers, receiver, Foreman Trust company, Chicago; G. W. Bunn, Jr., executive vice president, Springfield Marine bank, Springfield; George F. Dick, Jr., president, Peoples State of Bloomington, Bloomington; J. B. Lennon, president, City National bank, Dixon; Edward J. Barrett, auditor of public accounts, Springfield.

Cities and villages in Illinois probably have the right to pass ordinances licensing, regulating or prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors after the Eighteenth amendment is repealed and pending any changes in existing statutes. Such power was given municipalities years ago in the city and village act. Attorney General Otto Kerner, in an informal opinion, said he believed this provision of the act, which became inoperative with the enactment of the Eighteenth amendment, would again be in force after repeal of prohibition.

The Rock Island city council voted to put the river and rail terminal, built in 1931 for $400,000, on sale. Congressman Chester Thompson will be asked to urge the federal government or the Inland Waterways corporation to take it over. The city leases the terminal to the Inland Waterways corporation and receives 16 cents a ton for all freight handled. It was pointed out that during the two and a half years of operation the city has received slightly more than enough to pay the insurance on the terminal buildings. The cost of the project is being paid by the taxpayers over a period of 20 years. The city council also voted to cancel its membership in the Mississippi Valley association and turned down a request for $100, the association's fee.

Russell Hughes, age thirty-five, was shot and killed in a barber shop in Peoria by police seeking to question him about the operations of "Handsome Jack" Klutas' $500,000 kidnaping gang. Police said Hughes was an intimate friend of Klutas and other members of a syndicate charged with kidnaping wealthy gamblers of Chicago and other Illinois cities. They indicated he might have been a member of the gang. Two police detectives were wounded in the fight, and one of them, Robert Moran, died later.

A forest fire which for a time threatened to destroy the village of Patterson was brought under control by scores of volunteers, who succeeded in halting the progress of the flames by plowing up a small area in the direct path of the fire.

While Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Witt were celebrating their seventh wedding anniversary at the home of relatives, their home in Sherman avenue, just west of North Chicago, caught fire from an overheated stove and burned to the ground. The Witts' six children were with them at the time of the fire.

James A. Robleson, seventy-seven year-old farmer near Freeport, was attacked by a bull and fatally injured.

Frederick, a small town in Schuyler county, is in line for honors as the state's healthiest town. Roscoe Stephens, town clerk, signed a death report the other day, the first since May 3, 1932. Frederick has a population of 350.

Lincoln state school band and orchestra instruments valued at $600 were stolen from the music room in the institution gymnasium.

Harry Laidig of Sterling, prominent auto dealer, committed suicide by hanging in the basement of his home.

Post offices authorized for Illinois and their cost include: Glen Ellyn, $76,100; Libertyville, $56,300; Elmhurst, $76,200; St. Charles, $54,500; Morrison, $53,000; East Alton, $71,500; Fulton, $55,200; Normal, $72,600; Wood River, $71,500; West Frankfort, $70,400; Effingham, $79,800.

Ninety-five per cent of the total personal and real estate taxes in Knox county for 1932 have been collected. It was announced by County Treasurer Carl T. Goethe. The collections have reached $1,713,766, leaving about $90,000 worth of property to be forfeited to the state.

New Salem Is Restored as a Lincoln Shrine

NEW SALEM, the little town in Illinois where Abraham Lincoln lived for eight years and where he courted Ann Rutledge, has been rebuilt as it was a hundred years ago and dedicated as a shrine to the martyred President. Here is a view of the village as it now appears. The place has been made a state park.

CHILDREN'S STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

JERRY MUSKRAT REMEMBERS SOMETHING

Best of plans will meet defeat
Unless all details are complete.

THAT is the reason so many seemingly splendid plans never amount to anything. The idea may be the finest ever, but it is bound to fail unless each separate detail in it is worked out and made perfect. If one of these little details failed the whole thing would fail.

Jerry Muskrat, in planning that new house for Reddy Fox, was sure that he had thought of everything. He had even thought of a way for Reddy to get in and out of that house by means of tunnels, just as he himself went in and out of his own home. The only difference would be that Reddy would have dry tunnels instead of tunnels filled with water. He couldn't see any reason in the world why Reddy shouldn't have just as good a house as his, and he said so.

Now while Reddy Fox pretended to be very much interested in the idea of building a house he really hadn't the least idea of trying to build a house. Of course not. He had no use for such a house even if he could have built it. Reddy's interest was not at all in the house, but in getting Jerry Muskrat on shore where it would be a simple matter for Reddy to catch him. But he pretended a tremendous interest in that house because he hoped that by so doing he could get Jerry to forget that there was the least danger and so induce him to come ashore to show just how that house should be built.

"Did You Say Mud?" Asked Reddy

When Reddy asked what Jerry would suggest that the new house be built of, Jerry thought for a minute or two as he drifted in toward the bank of the Smiling Pool where Reddy sat. "I suppose," said he, "you would have no difficulty in getting plenty of sticks."

"Not the least trouble in the world," replied Reddy with a broad grin. "The Green Forest is full of them."

"We could take some rushes from here," continued Jerry thoughtfully,

"There is one thing that can be said about the stylish stouts," says corpulent Cora. "We were made for bigger things than the world has to offer."

BONERS

A simile is a widening of the face when pleased.

BONERS are actual humorous tid-bits found in examination papers, essays, etc., by teachers.

Socratic dialogue was speeches between two persons on a certain subject such as holiness, piety, love. One person does most of the talking and dominates the whole talk while the other person merely assents to what is said whether the answer is yes or no. The person who does not talk much is usually shown that what he has said is untrue and that he does not know what he is talking about.

A mummy is one that has no education at all.

The international date line runs through the Pacific Ocean to Greenwich, England, and causes day and night.

The word "don't" is a contraption.

Salem Witchcraft was a Dutch governor. He stamped about on his wooden leg and said I will not give up New York.

The English did not like Napoleon because he had said that they were just a nation of shopkeepers and at a place called Waterloo they charged him over and over again until he had lost everything.

and Reddy grinned more broadly than ever as he noticed that "we."

"Certainly we could," replied Reddy, chuckling down inside as he saw how Jerry was forgetting everything but the idea of that new house. "I suppose you would cut the rushes for me."

"Of course I would, and be glad to," was Jerry's prompt reply. "With plenty of sticks and rushes all we would need would be to plaster it with plenty of mud. This would be to hold them together."

"Did you say mud?" asked Reddy with a funny look on his face.

Jerry saw that funny look and then suddenly remembered that this house was to be built on dry land, and if this was to be the case of course there would be no mud handy. Without mud that house couldn't be built. It just MUST have mud. And there must be lots of it. A little wouldn't do. But unless Reddy should build his house close to the Smiling Pool, which he wasn't in the least likely to do, there would be no way of getting enough mud to it. Jerry looked up at Reddy and in the most mournful voice said:

"All our plans have gone for nothing. You can't build a house like mine. I've just remembered that you haven't any mud. I'm sorry. Let's not talk about it any more."

Without another word Jerry dived and disappeared.

FISH DISHES

IN MANY places fish is so plentiful that it is the cheapest of food. Even where it is shipped in it should be used as freely as the purse will allow, for fish is easily digested and a most wholesome food.

There are so many fresh water lakes and streams that all one needs is a fishing line with a little patience to bring home a meal.

Baked Stuffed Fish.

The stuffing of fish may be varied in many ways, adding to its flavor and making it more appetizing. The following is one that will be liked: Take one cupful of melted butter, one-half cupful each of rolled cracker crumbs and bread crumbs, salt, onion juice, pepper, and two cupfuls of chopped sour pickle. Stuff the fish, or if in fillets, put a layer of stuffing between slices and bake. Garnish with pickled onions and parsley.

Jellied Fish.

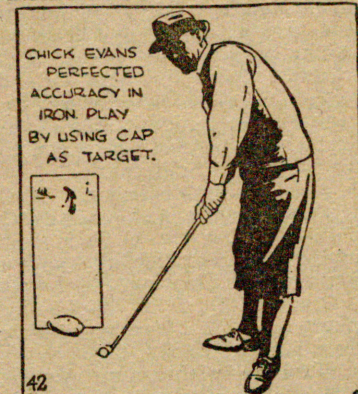

Cook two pounds of fish and remove all the bones and skin. Chop fine and add slowly one-fourth cupful of the fish broth, one teaspoonful of salt, the juice of three lemons, one tablespoonful of grated onion, two dozen blanched and chopped almonds and a dash of cayenne. Add two tablespoonfuls of gelatin to one-fourth cupful of water and dissolve in the hot broth, mix with the other ingredients and fill the mold. Chill, serve in a nest of crisp lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Mackerel Roe.

Scald the roe in acidulated water, drain and wipe dry, being careful not to break them. Season with salt, chopped parsley and onion juice. Flour well, dip in egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat. Serve on a folded napkin with fried parsley and slices of lemon for garnish.

CHICK EVANS' IRON SHOTS

CHICK EVANS, who for a time wore the amateur crown, is famous for his iron play to the greens. Never a great putter Evans had to depend a good deal on the accuracy of his shots to the pin. No matter which club he chose Chick seemingly could place the ball within putting distance. Evans had a unique method of practicing the shots and would devote himself painstakingly to it. With his white linen cap as a marker, he would stand about 150 yards away and hit balls by the

THE USELESS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHO are the useless? If a beggar smiled
And gave a faded posy to a child,
Then who would say
He had not served that day,
Or he himself, and not been reconciled?

There are no useless. If a man can find—
And so he can—occasions to be kind,
No high nor low
Nor rich nor poor men know
In life's great kingdom of the heart and mind.

Who are the useless? Only those who pass
And give no word, no thought, no look,
alas,
To other men.
Or other women then,
Whatever heights they win or wealth
amass.

These are the useless. But the much required
The very needed and the most desired,
Are those who meet
The world and leave it sweet,
The humble heartened and the great inspired.

Liverpool a Great Port

Liverpool is a great port because it possesses the only deep water haven on the west coast of England. There are six and one-half miles of docks on the city's side of the Mersey and nine and one-half miles on the Birkenhead side.

Garden Made High Up in the Sky

THE first unit of the elaborate landscaping to be used in the decoration of the buildings of Rockefeller Center, New York, is completed on the roof of the British Empire building, where hedges and trees have been planted around a pool.

LAND SET ASIDE FOR SOLE USE OF FEMALE NIMRODS

Connecticut is trying out a new experiment in feminism by setting aside 300 acres in the Farmington valley for women who wish to hunt game. Last year a woman game warden was appointed and a trout stream was reserved for women anglers. Now they are encouraged to try their hand at such game as Connecticut yields—rabbits, quail, and perhaps a groundhog now and then. Deer may not be killed in Connecticut, and bears seem to have disappeared, although they are to be found in Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine.

One peculiarity of the Connecticut plan is that women are permitted to shoot throughout the 55,000 acres of public shooting grounds, while men are excluded from the feminine preserve. Is this the beginning of a new deal, to culminate in the elimination of man and the development of female Nimrods holding a monopoly of hunting? The Nutmeg state? The authorities say no; they merely suggest that women are backward hunters, and that the special preserve will encourage them to become good shots. The warden, Miss Edith Stoeher, will be on hand to furnish clay pigeons to amateur gunners, and they will be instructed in the game laws, "so that they will know which kinds of game are protected, and do not flaze away wild at anything that comes within range."

Naturally, the preserve set aside for women would prove irresistible tempting to male hunters, but for the danger of being mistaken for wild game. If they are wise they will keep out of this preserve until the women learn how to handle firearms and to withhold their fire until they see their target clearly. A shotgun in the hands of an excited female is notoriously a lethal weapon!—Washington Post.

HOW TO FIND OUT IF YOU HAVE ACID STOMACH

HERE ARE THE SIGNS:

Nervousness	Frequent Headaches
Neuralgia	Feeling of Weakness
Indigestion	Sleeplessness
Loss of Appetite	Mouth Acidity
Nausea	Sour Stomach
	Auto-Intoxication

WHAT TO DO FOR IT:

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful 30 minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed. OR—Take the new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets—one tablet for each teaspoonful as directed above.

If you have Acid Stomach, don't worry about it. Follow the simple directions given above. This small dosage of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia acts at once to neutralize the acids that cause headache, stomach pains and other distress. Try it. You'll feel like a new person.

But—be careful you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "PHILLIPS" is on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM

Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Recalling Some "Tea Parties" of 160 Years Ago

Thos. Melvill

Scene of the Boston Tea Party

A Contemporary Cartoon Engraved by Paul Revere

Samuel Adams

Monday Morning, December 27, 1773.
THE Tea-Ship being arrived, every Inhabitant who wishes to preserve the Liberty of America, is desired to meet at the STATE-HOUSE, This Morning, precisely at TEN o'Clock, to advise what is best to be done on this alarming Crisis.

Notice in a Philadelphia Paper seized for non-payment. So, as December 16, the date of expiration, approached, affairs rapidly drew to a climax.

During the 19 days which elapsed between the arrival of the first ship and that climax, Samuel Adams and his followers held a series of meetings to determine upon a course of action. The first of these was in Faneuil hall and it immediately adjourned to Old South church where the subsequent meetings were held. At one of them the county sheriff appeared with a proclamation commanding the patriots to disperse. They listened to him quietly and then unanimously voted to continue their meeting.

On December 16 a great crowd gathered in Old South. Rotch had been sent to see Governor Hutchinson to secure his aid in getting clearance papers. While the meeting waited for his return, there were speeches—many of them. Hancock spoke, as did Josiah Quincy, Jr. But the most significant speech was that of John Rowe in which he boldly exclaimed: "Who knows how tea will mix with salt water!" The shout of approval that went up clearly indicated what was in the minds of most of those there.

Finally Rotch returned with the report that the governor would give him no aid. Then Samuel Adams arose. "This meeting can do no more to save the country," he said gravely but significantly. As though this were a prearranged signal, there was the sound of an Indian war-whoop outside and it was echoed by the crowd inside. Darkness was gathering as a party of men, most of them dressed in Indian costume but others with only black paint on their faces as a disguise, marched down to Griffin's wharf and quietly but quickly threw overboard every pound of tea on the three ships. There was no resistance and no other property damaged.

Their job done, the "Indians" dispersed quickly and doffed their disguises. For years the identity of those who took part in this premeditated act of violence and direct defiance to the king and his ministers were carefully guarded. But in later years, when the Revolution had been a success, the identities of many of them became generally known. One of the most interesting of these, so far as his later history was concerned, was Thomas Melvill, who became a fire-warden in Boston and is said to have been the last Bostonian to cling to the custom of wearing the cocked hat of colonial days. He became a familiar sight on the streets of Boston. Living to a shriveling old age, his venerable mien and quaint costume were immortalized by Oliver Wendell Holmes in the poem, "The Last Leaf," for which Melvill is more remembered than for his being a member of the Boston Tea Party. But there is another reason why he should be remembered. When he returned home on that historic night 160 years ago there was some tea in his boots. He preserved it in a bottle and that bottle and its contents may be seen in the Old State House today.

"You cannot imagine the height of joy that sparkles in the eyes and animates the countenances as well as the hearts of all we meet," wrote Samuel Adams after the whole thing was over. The crown authorities knew that it would be futile to try to identify the participants and punish them. So they decided to punish the whole city of Boston instead. The port of Boston was closed, the famous "Intolerable Acts" were passed. Gen. Thomas Gage came to Boston to succeed Hutchinson as governor and events moved swiftly to the opening of hostilities at Lexington and Concord.

But the rejoicing over the act of the "Indians" had already spread to other colonies and with it spread the spirit of resistance. In Philadelphia the patriots took precautions early to prevent the landing of tea from the ships which were en route to the Quaker city. On Christmas day, 1773, came the news that the ship Polly was down the Delaware river near Chester. A meeting attended by 5,000 persons was held and the temper of this meeting influenced the East India company's agent in Philadelphia to resign his office and it also influenced the captain of the Polly to sail back to London the very next day.

On New Year's eve a half chest of tea was burned on Boston Common as a further demonstration of what that town would do with any more such shipments.

On January 12, 1774, a town meeting was held at Newport, R. I., at which strong resolutions were passed warning the East India company against attempting to bring its tea into that colony. On January 20 three more barrels of tea were burned on Boston Common and on January 25 John Malcolm, a customs official who had been indiscreet in his remarks about what the king and his ministers were going to do to the members of the Boston Tea Party, was treated to a tarring and feathering and a free ride through the streets.

In New York the patriots became impatient to show that they knew as well as their Massachusetts brethren how to handle that "detestable tea." The ships of the East India company bringing its cargo of tea to the old Dutch city were delayed by the winds. But when a vessel not belonging to the East India company showed up with a similar cargo there was another "Indian costume" party and some more mixing of tea and salt water. In April, 1774, one of the company's tea ships did arrive and the captain was soon made aware of what would happen to his cargo if he didn't do as he was told. So he tarried no longer than was necessary to provision his ship and then spread his sails again for London.

In Annapolis there was an incident even more dramatic than that which had taken place in Boston. On October 14, 1774, the ship Peggy Stewart arrived with a double cargo of tea and indentured servants. Anthony Stewart, an Annapolis merchant and owner of the ship, paid the duty on the tea so that he might get the servants ashore. The patriots of Annapolis were angered at this and, although Stewart made a public announcement that he would burn the tea as soon as it was unloaded, a party, led by one Charles Wardfield, made it plain to him that this was not enough. The upshot of the matter was that Stewart with his own hands set fire to the ship and both it and its hated cargo of tea went up in flames.

In Charleston, S. C., the tea brought there by East India company ships was unloaded but it was immediately placed in storage. There it was kept until several years later when it was sold and the money used to obtain provisions for the Continental troops then waging the battle for liberty against the British. So the Boston and New York and Annapolis "tea parties" were more spectacular affairs, but who shall say that the Charleston "tea party," which is the least known, was not the most worth-while one, in that it advanced the cause of liberty by using the tea in a practical manner instead of mixing it with salt water or giving it to the flames?

Lesson for December 3

PAUL IN EPHESUS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 19:8-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven, Matthew 5:10.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Praising God With Our Gifts.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Asia Hears of Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Meet Opposition.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Facing Conflict for Christ.

I. Paul Preaching in Ephesus (vv. 8-10).

1. In the Jewish synagogue (v. 8). He was permitted to preach here for three months. His preaching was characterized,

(a) By boldness. He realized that God had sent him and that he was backed by divine authority.

(b) By reasoning. God's message is in accord with the highest reason.

(c) By persuasion. It is not enough to go boldly with a reasonable message, it must be accompanied by persuasion.

(d) By speaking "concerning the kingdom of God." He did not discourse on current events, philosophy, or literature, but upon the message of salvation through Christ.

2. In the school of Tyrannus (vv. 9, 10). The Jews were only hardened by Paul's earnest preaching. Paul separated the disciples from them and resorted to the school of Tyrannus.

II. God Works Miracles Through Paul (vv. 11, 12).

As Christ's messenger he needed credentials. If Paul's ministry was to be successful here, God must, in an extraordinary way, put his seal upon his work. So wonderfully did he manifest his power that even handkerchiefs and aprons which had been in contact with Paul's body healed the sick and cast out evil spirits from those who had been made wretched by them.

III. Paul's Work Imitated (vv. 13-16).

Seeing the marvelous power operating through Paul, certain Jews who went about the country practicing magical arts at the expense of their poor unfortunate fellow countrymen, undertook to use the name of Jesus in their deceptive work. Knowing that the connection with Jesus Christ was but pretense on the part of these Jews, the use of his name by them only enraged the evil spirits who sprang upon and overcame them.

IV. A Glorious Awakening at Ephesus (vv. 17-41).

1. Fear fell on all (v. 17). News of the casting out of these evil spirits created impressions favorable to Christianity.

2. It brought to the front those who professed faith in Christ while not living right lives (v. 18). They believed on Christ but had not broken from their sins.

3. They gave up the practice of black arts (v. 19). This means forms of jugglery by use of charms and magical words. No one can have fellowship with God while practicing these arts. They proved the genuineness of their actions by publicly burning their books.

4. The uproar of the silversmiths at Ephesus (vv. 23-41).

(a) The occasion (vv. 23, 24). This was the power of the gospel in destroying the infamous business of Demetrius and his fellows. They were not particularly interested in the matter from a religious standpoint, but because it was undermining the principal business of the city.

(b) The method (vv. 25-29). Demetrius, whose business was the mainstay of others of a similar nature, called a meeting and stated that much people had been turned from idolatry and that the market for their wares was materially weakened. He appealed to his fellows on the ground:

(1) Of business (v. 27). The world is willing to tolerate any kind of religion so long as it does not interfere with its business or manner of living.

(2) Of religious prejudice (v. 27). He became quite religious when his business was being interfered with.

(c) The issue (vv. 28-41). The speech of Demetrius gained his end. The crowd was enraged and cried in unison, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians!" (v. 28). This method of proving a point seems quite modern. The mob was quieted by the tact of the town clerk (v. 35).

First, he rebuked them for yelling for two hours to prove a point which everybody admitted (vv. 35, 36). Second, he showed that Paul and his companions were not guilty of any criminal act (vv. 37-39). Third, the people were in danger of being called to account for this riot should it come to the ears of Caesar (vv. 40, 41).

The Way of Life

It is wholly impossible to live according to divine order, and to make a proper application of heavenly principles, as long as the necessary duties which each day brings seem only like a burden grievous to be borne.

Cultivate Quietness

Cultivate the quietness as a means to the abiding in Christ! Expect the ever deepening quietness and calm of heaven in the soul as the fruit of abiding in him!

Franklin Supreme in Versatility of Genius

A mere list of the accomplishments of that remarkable man Benjamin Franklin; will show the versatility of his innate genius. Franklin founded the public library system in America; printed Poor Richard's Almanac, famous for its wise sayings; organized the first fire department in America; became postmaster of Philadelphia and postmaster general of the Colonies; invented the first stove, the lightning rod, a smokeless chimney, bifocal lenses for glasses, and an improved harmonica; founded the American Philosophical society; printed the first novel in America, as well as the first American translation from the classics; proved that lightning was a form of electricity; became clerk and speaker of the Pennsylvania assembly; founded the first Pennsylvania public college, now the University of Pennsylvania; devised a plan of street lighting and paving; helped organize a military force; helped establish first public hospital; perfected the printing press; introduced use of plaster in houses, mineral fertilizers on the farm, culture of silk, and basket willow; drafted a plan for a union of the Colonies; became ambassador to England and minister to France; elected delegate to Continental congress; negotiated treaties of peace with Sweden and England; elected governor of Pennsylvania; helped frame the Constitution of the United States, and organized a society against slavery.

Ship's Proud Record

On September 30, 1787, the American ship Columbia, a 212-ton vessel, left Boston to first carry the American flag around the world. The Columbia returned to Boston, August 9, 1790.—Kansas City Times.

Fine Community Co-operation Red Cross Feature

"The co-operation of suburban communities has been one of the most encouraging features of this year's roll call," said James T. Nicholson, manager of the Chicago Chapter, American Red Cross when interviewed early this week.

"Down here at headquarters we all feel that this splendid support, volunteered by the suburban people represents an inspiring appreciation of the relief work which the Red Cross has been able to do among less fortunate families in practically every community during the past year. It indicates, too, how vital success in our roll call is to the ability of the Red Cross to carry such work of service during the coming year," added Mr. Nicholson.

Dr. Frank J. Jirka, state health director, urging a generous response to the annual Red Cross roll call, makes this statement:

"As it followed the flag into the trenches of Europe, lending a merciful hand to the wounded and dying, so the Red Cross during the war on unemployment has sought out and ministered to the deep human needs of the economic crisis, giving out food and clothing to the needy, the Red Cross has demonstrated again its wonderful power of meeting in a permanently constructive manner the fundamental human needs in any emergency. Scores of eminent leaders in other relief agencies have been trained by the Red Cross. The Red Cross has been a tower of strength to American citizens during the economic emergency and as such deserves the generous support of the people."

FRANKFORT

By Mrs. Bertha Pfeifer

Miss Elizabeth Rahm spent the week end here. She has rented her house to Mr. and Mrs. Frost of Chicago who moved in this week. Miss Rahm is working in Chicago and staying there.

Robert Jolley who worked here this summer for Chas. Pfeifer on the E. J. & E. railroad, has returned to Chicago for the winter.

The Parent-Teacher meeting was held last Friday at the school. The next meeting will be held Friday afternoon, December 8.

David Krause who has been at the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minnesota for several weeks, is improving. He underwent three operations.

Mrs. Merline Embling and daughter of New Lenox visited Mrs. Charles Pfeifer Wednesday afternoon.

Sparks from a burning chimney caused a fire at the Edward Warnig home Saturday afternoon. The local fire department quickly responded and the blaze was quickly put out. Only a small damage resulted.

The teachers of the Sunday school classes of St. Peter's Evangelical church are getting ready for their Christmas program.

FRANKFORT SCHOOL NEWS

Folks, we have some more sad news for you. Thursday, November 23rd the Frankfort Grade Girls were supposed to play Mokena Grade Girls, but they didn't come. Instead we played the Mokena Grade Boys and lost by the score of 31 to 4. The score in the first half stood 0-13. The players were as follows:

Parents and Teachers Meeting
A goodly number of parents met at the auditorium on Friday at 2:45 p. m., for the character study course. All parents are invited to attend these meetings. Our next meeting will be held at the same hour and place on Friday, December 8th. Come again and bring someone with you.

NEW LENOX

By Ramona Fink

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gillett are the parents of a son born November 22nd. Mrs. Gillett was formerly Charlotte Fugett.

Miss Doris Urch and Norman Peterson entertained a group of friends in Urch Hall Saturday night. Games and dancing were the diversion of the evening. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Mangun and family were guests recently in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Reuter in Montgomery.

The New Lenox Community Singing society was organized recently. The following officers were elected: Director, E. R. Whitaker; president, Mrs. E. R. Whitaker; secretary, Miss Edith Stonehouse; treasurer, Mrs. Earl Strausberg; matrons, Mrs. Gordon Taylor, and Mrs. Edward Mangun. Meetings will be held every Monday night. Anyone who is interested is invited to attend.

Mrs. Archie Corp is ill in her home.

A meeting of the Sunday School board of the M. E. church was held Wednesday night in the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Paul Dibble. A Christmas cantata was planned for pupils of the primary department and main school of the church. Those in charge are: Mrs. Blanche Pierce, Mrs. Dorothy Francis and Mrs. Dibble.

Miss Ramona Fink spent the week end with her sister Julia in Chicago.

A Thanksgiving dance was held in Colonial Hall, Wednesday night. Mrs. Margaret Papke, Mrs. Eva Kercheval and Mrs. Anne Francis were joint hostesses at the November meeting of the Woman's Club in the Doig home Wednesday. Mrs. Adeline Francis, vice-president, presided over the meeting, due to the absence of the president, Dr. Holt. The meeting was opened with community singing led by Mrs. A. O. Bruns at the piano. This was followed by the salute to the flag.

The program which followed the business session was as follows: Reviews of "Decline of Puritan Virtues," and "America Must Dream Again" by Mrs. Adeline Francis; symposium, "In Consideration of National Education Week," "Children of the Future," "What's New in Education," and "How Much Do Marks Matter?" by Mrs. Clara Mangun, Mrs. Frances Gould and Mrs. Lucille Drake; demonstration, "Carving the Holiday Meat," Mrs. Louise Scherpe. Roll call was answered by "a blessing of this year."

A social hour followed and refreshments were served by the hostesses. Mrs. Paul Dibble was a guest of the club.

The December meeting will be in the form of a Christmas party and will be held in the home of Mrs. Adeline Francis.

Miss Velma Krohn was ill in her home in Brookwood Park last week.

ORLAND PARK

Mrs. Catherine Parker, 86 years old, a sister of Mrs. Betsy Austin of Orland Park, died at her home in Lockport, Sunday morning. She is survived by her husband, William Parker; two daughters, Mrs. George Agate of Morocco, Indiana. Mrs. Lucy A. Ostry of Lockport; four sons, Jerry S. and Frank C. of Homewood township, Henry M. of Lockport township, and John T. of Lemont township; one sister, Mrs. Betsy Austin of Orland Park; one brother, George McGregor of Auburn, New York.

Private funeral services were held from the home at 2 o'clock and to the First Methodist church at 2:30 o'clock from where public services were held Tuesday. Burial was in the Lockport cemetery.

Roscoe Scott expects to leave the forepart of December for the West Indies on a golf ground job for a construction company. He expects to be away for five months. He will be greatly missed in Joliet and New Lenox.

What is said to have been the largest crowd ever seen at a social affair in St. Michael's hall in Orland Park, gathered last Saturday night at the poultry bunco. It is estimated that fully 250 persons attended the affair and many more had to be turned away for lack of room. The prizes consisted of poultry. The big or grand prize was a 42 pound turkey which was captured by a lady from Oak Lawn. Everyone able to get in the hall reports a wonderful time.

The poultry bunco held by the men of the Christ Lutheran church on Friday evening was a huge success. An exceptionally large crowd attended the affair, which was held in the public school auditorium. A fine lot of poultry prizes were given. Refreshments were served and all enjoyed a fine time.

Thanksgiving poultry was shipped into Orland from Iowa and North Dakota points the past week.

The Orland Park stores are beginning to put on a real Christmas appearance. Christmas toys and other Christmas merchandise is on display.

The Orland Park school students are having a semi-holiday this week. School was closed Thursday and Friday.

Sherman Knox and family spent Thanksgiving with the former's parents in Palos Park.

The snow and sleet of last Saturday night served to cut down the attendance somewhat at last Sunday's services at the Orland Park M. E. church. However a fair number of the faithful were present and were rewarded by hearing Rev. John Mullen preach a powerful and abiding sermon on the subject of Thanksgiving.

A happy start has attended the opening of the Junior Church. At the opening meeting Sunday before last, 25 were present for the two hours of worship, instruction and sociability. These services are to be held every other Sunday from 4 to 6 p. m. and are intended for children of the 9 to 15 years age group. These services it is hoped, will help stimulate the interest of the younger folks in the way of the church and will help lay a firm foundation on which to erect their Christian lives and ideals. Parents would do well to co-operate and urge a regular and punctual attendance of their children at these services.

The next meeting of the Junior church will be held next Sunday at 4 p. m.

The Sunday School of the Orland Park M. E. church is rapidly following into its full stride and the weekly increases is pleasingly noticeable. The attendance is now around the 100 mark and it is the earnest wish of the energetic Superintendent, George Munch, that every child in the parish who has no church school affiliation be brought into the fold. Miss Ruth Ludwig who has been an earnest and conscientious worker and teacher has given up her regular class work because of inability to attend every Sunday and the privilege and honor of filling her place has been given to Marion Wheeler. To guard against the possibility of any of the regular teaching staff being unable to attend to his or her Sunday school class, the Sunday School Board has selected a list of capable substitute or reserve teachers who will be available upon call or necessity to step into the work of the regular staff if needed.

The following have been designated and accepted as the reserve teaching force of the Church School: Class 1, Mrs. Edgar Cooper. Class 2, Mrs. Clarence Beagley. Class 3, Mrs. Leonard Kay. Class 4, Miss Alma Newton. Class 5, Miss Lavon Kay. Class 6, Miss Ruth Ludwig. Class 7, Miss Gladys Townsend. Class 8, Miss Mildred Rector. Class 9, Miss Mildred Rector. Class 10, Mrs. Andrew Burbon. Class 11, Mr. C. E. Beagley. Class 12, Dr. Sherman S. Knox.

George (Papa) Munch has his class of boys pretty well in hand and a perfect attendance is to be expected of this class every Sunday. Not long ago "Papa" took his bunch of boys for a hike that ended with a "wienie roast" at Spencer Springs. Last week, what was originally intended for a skating party, was turned into another woodland ramble with the culminating fireside feast to top it off. Other teachers are planning to get into the every day life and play of the members of their classes as well and many good times and good things may be looked forward to.

ORLAND PARK SCHOOL NOTES

This composition on "Africa" is by Robert Toelle of the 6th grade: Africa to fight the snake. While they were fighting the snake I slipped away unseen. We soon came to the Congo River and we rode down it on a boat. I traveled again by camel over the Kalihare Desert till we came to Cape Town. I again took passage on a steamer and when we got to the United States I sold my gorilla to a museum.

Quail have been quite plentiful in this section and hunters have been bagging their quota.

Hogs Tight Tie-Up With Corn Makes A Knotty Problem

Hogs are hogs and corn is corn, but the two are so closely related that they not be separated in trying to restore the hog income of Will county farmers to its former relationship with the prices of things farmers buy, according to Farm Adviser L. W. Brahm. This close relationship has been considered in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's corn-hog program which the extension service of the College of Agriculture, university of Illinois is soon to launch in this county, it was announced.

Prices of corn and hogs are so closely related because hogs consume about one-half of the nation's total production of corn, Farm Adviser Brahm explained.

"Consequently, measures that raise hog income also indirectly increase income from corn. But a downward adjustment of hog production in a normal crop year releases large quantity of corn for other purposes. For a time after hog production has been reduced corn will be cheap, and perhaps there will be a tendency for farmers to cut corn production as well. Almost inevitably there is a tendency to re-expand livestock and poultry operations to take up the comparatively cheap corn. Hog growers tend, almost irresistibly, to expand operations when corn is cheap, even though the current prospective production of both corn and hogs may exceed profitable demand.

"On the other hand, when the corn supply is small, livestock production is cut by feeding to lighter weights and by breeding fewer females. If corn prices remain relatively higher than hog prices over a period of months, growers as a group conclude that they should reduce the size of the next pig farrow. Therefore they breed fewer sows.

They also sell fattened pigs at lighter weights.

"This sympathetic response of hog production to changes in corn production produces what is known as the 'hog-corn cycle. It ranges from three to five years in length. The relationship between corn and hogs is known as the 'corn-hog ratio'. It is expressed as the number of bushels of corn having a farm value which equals the farm value of 100 pounds of live hog.

"The U. S. corn-hog ratio which under ordinary conditions tends neither to encourage nor to discourage a change in hog production is the farm value of 11.4 bushels of corn to the farm value of 100 pounds of live hog. What is regarded as a neutral corn-hog ratio differs in different states.

"During both 1931 and 1932 and the first three months of 1933 the corn-hog ratio was favorable to an increase in hog production. That is, hog prices were relatively higher than corn prices. During 1931 the ratio averaged 11.9 bushels of corn to 100 pounds of hogs, in 1932 it averaged 12.6, in January, 1933, it was 14, in February 15.2 and in March 15.6. Such periods usually are followed by an increase in hog marketings a year or two later.

"At the present time the corn-hog ratio is unfavorable to an increase in hog production. That is, corn prices are high compared with hog prices. Prospects for a small corn crop caused this. In September the corn-hog ratio was 8 bushels of corn to 100 pounds of live hogs and in July it was 7.2, the smallest corn-hog ratio on record and the most unfavorable to hog feeding with the exception of the one in July of 1924."

Thanksgiving

Claudius E. Wade, Director
Chicago College of Commerce

This year more than ever before, it seems I have endeavored to increase my understanding and appreciation of what "Thanksgiving" means to people other than myself. To some, Thanksgiving comes only once a year; to others, it is every day. To some, it is a crust of bread and a humble heart full of thankfulness. It is different for everybody.

However, it occurs to me that we all should be thankful to the Eternal Source that made the world and fitted it up for a dwelling-place for man; that we are privileged to live on this earth along with billions of others who are entitled to just as much of it as we are. We are all pilgrims traveling by day and by night toward the end.

During our brief sojourn on this mundane plane, we should not be forever complaining about our plight and all the things that have befallen us, but rather we should be thankful for all the things that have not happened to us. If we are a little bush instead of an oak, a hill and not a mountain, a rivulet instead of an ocean, just be thankful—there is a reason for it. The great Creator has endowed us with a personality unlike any other. How ever humble and lowly our position among men, let us not make the great mistake and wish ourselves someone else and be like Esau who regarded his birthright so lightly that he sold it for a mess of pottage.

We bring nothing into this world and certainly we will take nothing out when we go. The train that we transfer to from this life does not carry baggage cars. Tho we struggle and suffer, labor and sacrifice, trust and are deceived, want and cannot have, we still can hope and not in vain, that at the end there is an heritage for us all greater than we imagine.

"Or soon, or late, to all that sow
The time of harvest shall be given;
The flower shall bloom, the fruit
shall grow,
If not on earth, at last in heaven."

MOKENA

Jacob Barenz and family moved into the Barney Hostert residence on Niethammer avenue Monday.

The village board is enforcing its ruling relative to shutting off the water supply of delinquent water users. Several of the delinquent water users had their water supply shut off the forepart of this week.

Mr. Montgomery a former Mokena resident, now of Homer township, has been quite ill with acute indigestion. He is able to be about again.

The village board will meet in monthly session next Tuesday evening.

Joliet Rialto Theatre News

The Rialto stage in Joliet will be the center of much activity in the near future. "Shuffle Along" direct from its New York and Chicago engagements will be the feature attraction. This Road Show has a company of 40 people and it is considered the fastest moving stage show in these parts in many months. In these United States it is looked up to as the greatest colored show ever produced. It boasts such names as Eubie Blake and his orchestra, Eubie by the way being a composer of note, and Paul Whiteman plays one of Mr. Blake's live forever hits many times—it's "I'm Just Wild About Harry". Of all the hits he has ever written his pet brain child is "Shuffle Along". It is like old wine, it improves with age and so does Eubie Blake. Many other notables in the cast include Roy Carter, 3 septa Songbirds, The Stepping Sextette and the 12 bronze beauties. And there's Flournoy Miller, Mantan Moreland, Della Newson, Cook and Brown and last but not least Geneva Washington and the 3 Brown Spots. This great stage show will be featured at the Rialto Theatre, Joliet on December 1st and 2nd. In conjunction with this stage show the Rialto Theatre screen will offer Paramount's latest sensation, "Hell and High Water" with Richard Arlen and Judith Allen.

Saturday 4 deluxe performances on both stage and screen starting at 1:30, 4:00, 6:30 and 9.

ALL IN A FEW YEARS

Since August, 1911, the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois has been building a remarkable gas and electricity system which today brings you uninterrupted service. Today approximately 250,000 families in 323 communities and on nearly 9,289 farms find this service at their command around the clock. And economically. Living expenses are constantly mounting in their unreliable manner, but the cost of your gas and electricity, as always, remains constant. The company's taxes have increased, operating costs are going up, consumption is off the standards of past years; but, in good times and bad, your uninterrupted service continues to be at your command.

World Date Line Only Matter of Convenience

Custom and the convenience of the public regulates the international date line, as it does the divisions between the time belts in the United States. These do not follow meridians. The time belts in the United States are regulated by the Interstate Commerce commission, but the Far East has never had a conference, international or local, to establish the date line.

It would be inconvenient, for example, for some of the Fiji islands to have a different day than Australia or New Zealand, or to have the day of the week differ from one island to another.

Until recently map makers differed on the location of the international date line. A few years ago Prof. George Davidson of the University of California, formerly of the United States coast and geodetic survey, conducted an extensive correspondence with the regions approximately under the date line to see what line was actually recognized by the people who lived there. He drew a line on the map as a result of his investigation and practically all cartographers follow it.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets are best for liver, bowels and stomach. One little Pellet for a laxative—three for a cathartic.—Adv.

New Theory With Each
A wise father who has five sons has five theories for raising sons.

To improve Any child's APPETITE

A sluggish appetite means a sluggish colon. Correct this condition called stasis, and see how quickly a listless, drooping boy or girl begins to eat—and gain! The only "medicine" such children need is pure, unadulterated fig syrup.

California syrup of figs is doing wonderful things for ailing, sickly children all over the United States.

If your baby, boy or girl is bilious—pale-faced and dull-eyed from constipation—breath bad mornings, tongue coated all the time—don't give cathartics that weaken twenty feet of bowels! Instead, a little syrup of figs that doesn't disturb either stomach or bowels, but does act on the lower colon—where the trouble lies.

Nature never has made a finer laxative for children; they all love the wholesome, fruity flavor of the real California syrup of figs. It's purely vegetable, but every druggist has it all bottled, with directions. Begin with it at once. Your child will soon be eating better and feeling better. Keep on with the syrup of figs a few days and see amazing improvement in appetite, color, weight, and spirits.

Children who get syrup of figs, now and then, keep well and avoid colds.

NOTICE: The bottlers of California Syrup of Figs respectfully warn mothers that the promises made here apply only to the genuine product in bottles plainly marked CALIFORNIA.

MEMBER N. R. A.

LIFE LONG "FRIEND" Keeps Them Fit at 70

This safe, all-vegetable laxative—NR—has been as dependable as a family doctor during their trying "after forty" years. NR keeps them regular—year after year faithfully—with never any need to increase the dose.

No wonder their "evening of life" is so free from complaints. Millions of people welcome the aid of this reliable corrective. For Nature's Remedy strengthens and regulates the entire eliminative tract; safely carries away the poisons that bring on headaches, colds, biliousness. Get a 25c box. All druggists.

"TUMS" Quick relief for acid indigestion, heartburn. Only 10c.

Don't Trifle With Coughs

Don't let them get a strangle hold. Fight germs quickly. Creomulsion combines the 7 best helps known to modern science. Powerful but harmless. Pleasant to take. No narcotics. CHAPTER XII—Continued

He was silent. Doris said, "I was Mrs. Howard Valery. You see I've read about it in the papers." The sweet drowsy air was stifling now. "Rocky—that's what the girl in Tange's called me—Mrs. Valery! I heard the Val—and thought she said Du Val—because—oh I wanted so dreadfully to be—"

His arms enclosed her. "Did you? Oh Doris did you? You're so sweet, Doris."

She clung to him desperately. Then a momentary peace swept her. Rocky was her friend. "Rocky!" In his arms she seemed safe. His warm cheeks touched hers, bringing magic. "Let me take care of you forever," whispered Rocky.

The words were very sweet. The green mystery of the yew arbor held them calmly. They were oblivious to the gay voices beyond getting ready for the wedding rehearsal.

"You've seen my family?"

He nodded. "Your father and your mother—your sister and your uncle."

"What were they like?"

"They were nice. They love you, Doris."

She wrinkled her brows. This unknown family was hard to visualize.

"You mean they still love—Diane Merrell?"

"Yes. And they don't believe you did it."

"But—the papers say—"

"Yes. The evidence is all against you. The Valery family will do everything in their power to—convict you."

"Why does my family think I am innocent?"

Rocky looked down at her ringless hand. "They have no reason. They believe only because—they love you—the same reason that I believe."

Their eyes held. Out of the black terrible depths Doris felt waves of light and joy bearing her upward. Rocky loved her. His face touched hers with a dreamlike closeness. Everything else was shut away. He loved her. "Doris, darling Doris. I love you. I've always loved you. Don't be unhappy. Let me take care of you—always."

Rocky was speaking like that. He loved her. He had always loved her. She had never been so happy.

"But Rocky—"

His lips brushed the rest tenderly from her lips. "Do you love me?"

They kissed. Rocky knew now. She did love him. No matter what she would say, no matter what she had done. He would know that. He would always know—

But he was asking her. "Doris, dearest Doris, do you love me?"

He wanted an answer. He must have an answer. Did she love him or was it only that she needed him so badly? There was no doubt, "Rocky darling," she whispered, "I do love you. You're—"

Rocky's face flushed into a smile. "I'm happy," he finished for her softly.

She caught Rocky's shoulder. "You haven't told me yet! You haven't told me what's troubling you. You're terribly upset about something."

He looked, stricken with misery, at the grass. "Doris," he began, "I've talked to your family. They sent you this."

He drew back from her, still holding her, and felt in his pocket. He drew out a long wallet.

Doris took it wonderingly. Inside were many bills—one or two documents. "Money?" said Doris.

"Yes. Your father wants you to go away. It's a passport there—that paper. I had some trouble getting it—but your father knew a man at Washington. That's why I wasn't back yesterday."

"You mean my family wants me to run away?"

Rocky hesitated. "Your uncle is a doctor—a specialist in, well—in things just like what you've got—"

"You mean brain diseases?"

"Well—yes. But your brain is all right. Anyway I talked to him. We had a consultation about it, and he said that it was sure suicide for you to give yourself up."

She looked at him haggardly. "But they'd kill me anyway for what I did, wouldn't they? I suppose I deserve it. I took that—that young man's life."

"No, they'd probably be able to get you off—well you're young and I don't think a jury would convict you—at least once they'd seen you—there would be a good chance of your getting off. But your brain couldn't stand it."

"And I'm to live the rest of my life—wanted by the police?"

He held her closely. "You're going to spend the rest of your life—wanted by me. You're going to do what your mother wants you to do, and what your uncle advises. You're going to let me take care of you. Aren't you?"

His lips were very close. She did not answer.

They kissed. After a while Rocky said, "I've made all my plans. We'll wait here until the rehearsal is over. Then I'll speak to Beatrice and get your clothes. We'll leave by back roads and move toward Canada. There is a boat sailing from Quebec tonight. You know I go back and forth from Paris frequently on business, and I can just as well live in Paris as in New York. You'll not be recognized in Paris. Nobody will suspect my wife—"

"Your wife! Oh but I can't be your wife—what about Doris?" She drew back. In the excitement of crowded events she had forgotten about Molly.

"Rocky, a girl came from Doris—and we—that is, Beatrice really did it—we looked her in the closet. And I wonder if she's there still?"

"Oh—that was Molly," said Rocky easily. "That's all right. As soon as I got here—which was a couple of minutes after you left, Beatrice said—I saw Molly. We got her out of the closet, poor kid. She delayed me or I'd have followed you sooner."

"But what did she say about Doris?"

"Good G—d. I haven't told you, have I? And it's the only ray of light in an otherwise gloomy night. Doris is in Reno."

Her mind flew back to the scene in the Biltmore dressing room. "I might have known. She talked about getting a divorce in Reno the whole time I saw her. She went out on my money."

He laughed ruefully. "I'm afraid so. The story of the baby was a fake to soften my heart and loosen up the purse strings. Anyway she's been out there for six weeks now, and her case comes up today."

"Today!"

"Today. That's why Molly came out. Doris read the story in the papers yesterday about our being stopped by the police. She saw a swell chance to get a marriage settlement. Well—she got it."

"You mean—you're going to give her money?"

"Ten thousand. I sent her a wire. It's cheap at the price. And Father will fork it over when he hears the whole story." His cheek touched hers softly. "I may be a free man right now—if the court has met. I—couldn't say much before."

"Where's the man in the cab?"

"In the hospital. He's got a broken shoulder bone. Otherwise he's all right."

Rocky looked down at her ringless hand. "They have no reason. They believe only because—they love you—the same reason that I believe."

Their eyes held. Out of the black terrible depths Doris felt waves of light and joy bearing her upward. Rocky loved her. His face touched hers with a dreamlike closeness. march. I remember. Only there were lilacs—I marched through a lilac alley—"

"Look!"

Advancing slowly through the lovely vista of delphiniums came Beatrice St. Gardens, a beautiful bride on her father's arm. Their feet paced slowly in time with the slow strains.

"Rocky," whispered Doris, "hold me closely. I—I remember."

His heart was beating wildly, but he said nothing. The slow dignified notes of the wedding march swelled and deepened. Her eyes had closed.

"I was married in a garden," she said at last.

"It was like this. They played that. There was an aisle like that. I walked with father. The lilacs were very sweet. The dogwood was lovely. It was at home. Oh darling Rocky I remember everything and—I didn't shoot Howard!"

"Don't tell me now," said Rocky gently. "It's enough for me that you didn't do it."

"But I've got to tell you. It's so simple. Don't you see? George Mortimer was jealous and he said he'd never let Howard have me. So just as we came out of the side door—"

"Wait a minute, dear. I'm not sure I understand. Was George Mortimer the man in the cab?"

"Why—" she paused. "Why of course he was. How could I have thought he was my husband. No. He shot Howard right after the wedding when we were leaving very secretly for our honeymoon. I remember it now—I am so thankful." She seemed to be looking clearly through a long mist of hope. "I came through the aisle with my father to marry—to marry Howard!" She was incoherent.

Rocky held her closely.

"Howard Valery. But I didn't—" she looked back at Rocky, all doubt gone from her eyes. "I didn't kill Howard. Oh Rocky, I'm innocent of that. Thank God, I remember it all now." Her eyes contracted suddenly with the memory of a new pain. "But George Mortimer killed him. He shot him and I—I must have fainted. I can't remember what else."

"What happened just before the shot?"

"Why, we were coming out of a side door to escape the crowd. Father managed that. He was in the front of the house trying to keep everybody amused—and unsuspecting. Then George came from behind the hedge and shot Howard. He said to Howard, 'You'll never have her.' He shot and I fainted."

"But Doris—the note? Do you remember the note you wrote—"

Her eyes searched his face. "The note? Oh. Yes. I did write Howard a note. I told him not to marry me. I was afraid he'd be killed. I didn't want to have that on my conscience. Oh—yes. It was awful. I kept thinking of George's threat all through the wedding. Then—when his face came out of the bushes as we left the house—"

"But the note said, 'I don't want to kill you.' That was the part that made people think it was premeditated."

Doris thought. "I can't remember exactly what I said in the note now. George turned up the morning of the wedding. He threatened to kill Howard if I married him. I called Howard up and told him. He wouldn't listen to me." Her face contracted. "Oh poor Howard—poor Howard."

Rocky held her closely. "Don't think of it now. You mustn't. I'm a brute to ask you all these questions."

"No, no. I want you to understand. After I saw George that morning there was a terrible rush. I couldn't get any time for anything, and all the time I felt that the wedding ought not to go on. But the family had been to so much trouble I knew nothing could stop it unless Howard did. I nearly went out of my mind worrying. Then I couldn't get to talk to Howard. He had a lot of things to do. Finally I sat down and wrote the note, and gave it to Bill Grant—he was the best man—and told him to be sure Howard got it."

"But why did you say, 'I don't want to kill you'?"

CAP AND BELLS

HER HEART'S DESIRE

A fond father was desirous of announcing to his little daughter that the fairies had visited the house and brought a beautiful gift.

"Well, darling," he said, "the fairies have brought something to mother and I do."

The child looked up eagerly.

"Oh, daddy, do tell me what it is."

Father, looking very solemn, said: "I'll give you one guess. What is it you want from mother more than anything else in the world?"—and then collapsed as the darling, clapping hands, shrieked: "Guinea pigs!"

Identified

The teacher was explaining the difference between the stately rose and the modest violet.

"You see, children," she said, "a beautiful, well-dressed woman walks along the street, but she is proud and does not greet anybody—that is the rose. But behind her comes a small creature with bowed head."

"Yes, miss, I know," Tommy interrupted, "that's her husband."—Stray Stories.

"What is Philip doing these days?"

"Running a branch business."

"But who on earth buys branches?"—Stuttgarter Illustrierte.

TIME TO FORGET

"MY OWN PEOPLE, RIGHT OR WRONG"

"No wonder," writes one of our readers, "that women are the object of all sorts of discrimination. They don't know enough to stand together. There's one organization of women gone down to Washington to fight for something for WOMEN, and another organization of WOMEN fighting against them. I think the women who are fighting other women trying to get something for women should go to jail!"

The distinguished woman writer to whom this outburst was addressed answered it thus:

"I do not feel that in this day in this country it is necessary for women to stand by women, right or wrong, because they are women. To my mind that is only justifiable in an uneven fight, at the beginning of a struggle in which everything is stacked against one."

"I think women in this country today are so utterly free, that they enjoy equality and privileges to such an extent that they now have a RESPONSIBILITY to justify their positions. And you can't do that by dividing the world into WOMEN and MEN and backing the women, right or wrong."

"The quickest way to bring prejudice and discrimination upon any class of human beings is to segregate them and announce that they are fighting, first of all, for themselves. When women had no voice in government, in education, in churches, even in their private affairs, that attitude was justified. They had no responsibility toward a society that rated them low. But in our country today we have a responsibility—to maintain the right, the public good, to be fair and just and wise and stable on all questions. We have no responsibility to other women just because they are women."

"It seems to me that is the best thing we can do for women as women—to show that we can rise above conceit as women, above the greed for power and influence and personal aggrandizement—and sex distinctions."

HE NEEDED WATER

Small Eric wanted to go to the swimming baths with the bigger boys, but his teacher thought it wouldn't be safe.

"But I'm a good swimmer, sir," he pleaded.

"Can you swim a length?" asked the teacher.

The boy did not seem to grasp his meaning, so to make it clear the teacher said, "Can you swim from your desk to the door?"

"Oh, no, sir," Eric replied, "there's no water there."—London Tit-Bits.

The Proper Way

"Wait a second, I want to rubber at that girl."

"Well, make it snappy."

LEAKING SUN

Reid's mother was busy cleaning and Reid sat gravely studying the band of drifting dust and lint which could readily be seen in the bright path of sunlight coming in through the window.

"I know what's the matter, mamma," he decided at last, "you wouldn't have to clean nearly so much if the sun didn't always keep leaking so much dust!"—Indianapolis News.

CHICAGO AGAIN PLANS FOR BIG STOCK SHOW

With the approaching International Live Stock Exposition, agriculture is again heading toward the year's largest and most spectacular display of its many industries.

It will be the 34th anniversary of this huge spectacle of prize live stock, crops, and scores of other farming exhibits. The show will be held this year from December 2nd to 9th in its permanent home which covers an area of 25 acres of exhibition halls, amphitheatre and barns at the entrance to the Chicago live stock market.

Predict Large Entries

Entries for the various live stock classes of the Exposition closed on November 1st. The large number of early entries, many of them including show herds from the leading live stock farms of this country and Canada, leads B. H. Heide, secretary-manager of the Exposition, to predict that the International Live Stock Show will this year continue its annual custom of outdistancing its predecessors in the size and impressiveness of its displays.

The fact that but slight curtailments have been made in the prize lists over former years is an added attraction to owners of herds and flocks of show ring quality, he asserts. Competition is listed for 29 different breeds of live stock. They include beef cattle, draft horses, sheep and swine.

Big Crop Show Planned

This year will mark the 15th anniversary celebration of the International Grain and Hay Show, a department of the International Live Stock Exposition, but in itself the largest farm crops show in the world. The prize lists will remain substantially the same as in past years, the management announces.

The 12th annual Boys and Girls Club Congress will be held in connection with the International Live Stock Show. A thousand or more 4-H Club boys and girls, all of them winners in contests at their home state fairs, will come to Chicago from 43 states to contest for the national awards of the year.

OFF COMES FAT Hips—Bust—Chin

GET THAT KRUSCHEN FEELING

Gain Physical Attractiveness—Be Free From Constipation, Gas, Acidity and Liver Troubles.

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—in 4 weeks get on the scales and note how many pounds of fat have vanished.

Notice also that you have gained in energy—your skin is clearer—your eyes sparkle with glorious health—you feel younger in body—keener in mind. Kruschen will give any fat person a joyous surprise.

Get a jar of Kruschen Salts—the cost is trifling and it lasts 4 weeks. If even this first jar doesn't convince you this is the easiest, safest and surest way to lose fat—if you don't feel a superb improvement in health—so gloriously energetic—vigorously alive—your money returned.

But be sure for your health's sake that you ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at any drugstore in the world.

16 1/2 Pounds of Fat Gone
"I've lost 16 1/2 lbs. of fat and have taken about one-third of my second bottle of Kruschen. Sure feeling fine." Mrs. J. E. Burns, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Unusual Salads

IT is difficult to devise a new salad, so all the old ones are served over and over again. Have you ever thought of using corn in your salads? It can be done, and it provides a filling dish against the first chill days of fall. Here are some recipes for such salads which will help you to vary this part of the meal.

These Are Different

Corn Salad: Marinate the contents of a 12-ounce can of whole kernel corn and one-half cup of grated or finely chopped raw carrot in one-third cup French dressing for an hour or so in the refrigerator. Add one-third cup shredded ripe olives, and serve in a nest of lettuce. Serves eight.

Corn and Pepper Salad: Drain one No. 2 can of whole grain corn, add one-half a green pepper and one pimiento, diced, season with salt and pepper, and marinate in one-fourth cup French dressing in the refrigerator until very cold. Serve on lettuce leaves. Serves six.

Corn Shock Salad: Thrust three or four canned asparagus tips through a ring of green pepper, then arrange them to stand upright in a lettuce leaf, to resemble a shock of corn. Garnish around base with mayonnaise, and here and there place tiny pickled ears of corn. Have all the ingredients very cold.
